

AFTER TREATMENT

In this section, you will learn about:

- Transitions after treatment
- Support programs
- Follow-up care
- Summary of my care

Transitions after Treatment

When you complete your chemotherapy and/or radiation treatment, please re-visit the LHSC Public Website and view the ‘Transitions After Treatment’ video. Write down any questions you may have for your primary nurse or chemotherapy nurse.

1. Go to the LHSC Public Website at: <http://www.lhsc.on.ca/>
2. Click on ‘Patients, Families and Visitors’ at LHSC.
3. Click on ‘Programs and Services at LHSC’ and choose ‘Cancer Care.’
4. Then click on ‘London Regional Cancer Program’.
5. The LRCP Orientation videos are listed on the right.

You can also type in the direct link on your web browser:

<http://lrpc.tours.lhsc.on.ca/transitions-after-treatment/what-now>

Your feelings after treatment

During your cancer treatment, it might have been hard to imagine that your treatment would come to an end. Most people will experience a mix of good and bad feelings. Some of these emotions may include:

- Relief that your frequent visits to the hospital are over
- Fear that the cancer will come back
- Feeling frightened or alone without the regular support of your health care team
- Looking for new meaning or purpose in life

Family and friends may be ready to move on from your experience with cancer and want to celebrate the end of your treatment. You might not be ready for this yet and you may feel like the trauma is not over.

Patient experience:

The medical part of your cancer may be over but the effects of cancer can still be felt after your treatment has ended.

- John

Getting back to a 'normal' life

Returning to your day-to-day routines and going back to your “normal life” may not be so easy. Rather than expecting to go back to your life as you lived it before treatment, it is helpful to think of creating a new way of living.

Give yourself enough time to understand what you have just been through and do not expect to feel great about everything right away. Be kind to yourself while you sort through the mix of emotions you may feel. Many people need some help along the way. You may choose to talk to someone about your feelings in one of the support programs listed in this binder.

Side effects after treatment

Side effects can be ongoing and can last months or years after your treatment is finished. Usually side effects go away a few months after you finished treatment. Make sure you speak with your doctor about your side effects and how to manage them.

Cancer and its treatment can permanently change the way our body looks, works and feels. Do not be afraid to speak to your health care team about managing these changes long-term. There are many other health professionals that can help you manage your body changes. These health professionals may include dietitians, dentists, physiotherapists, occupational therapists, massage therapists, and speech language pathologists.

Support programs

There are several support programs that may be helpful to you and your family after you've finished your treatment.

Wellspring: The Survivor's Support Group

After cancer treatment, many people experience a difficult range of emotions. You may be wondering how to move from “cancer patient,” a role that may have taken a great deal of time to accept and learn to be a “cancer survivor.” Wellspring London has designed a group specifically for this phase of your cancer journey.

The Survivors' Support Group is an 8 week program led by a qualified group leader and trained Wellspring co-facilitator.

For more information on the Survivor's Support Group or to register, call Wellspring at:

519-438-7379 (London & Region)

519-271-2232 (Stratford)

Your follow-up care

Will I need to have follow-up care at the cancer centre?

Everyone will have a different follow-up care plan. Depending on the type of cancer you had, your treatment, and whether you experience long-term side effects,

You may be asked to come in for some follow-up visits. Your doctor will let you know if you need follow-up care.

Your family doctor

It is important that you have a family doctor to organize your care. It is better to see a family doctor regularly than to see a few different doctors. Your family doctor can also help you keep track of your physical and emotional needs and arrange for other care if it is needed.

Make sure your family doctor is up to date on:

- Any medications that you are taking including over-the-counter medications such as pain killers, laxatives, vitamins, etc.
- Any changes you have made to your overall lifestyle (e.g. quitting smoking, trying a new diet, a change in your exercise routine, etc).
- Appointments that you have with other doctors (e.g. an oncologist).
- Any concerns that you have related to your health (e.g. a new symptom).
- When you are due for your next screening test (e.g. a mammogram, PSA test, etc.)

If you do not have a family doctor, call the Health Care Connect Patient Registry: 1-800-445-1822.

You can use the “Summary of my care” found in the ‘About Me’ section to help you speak to your family doctor about your health.

Recommended resources

Visit the Patient & Family Resource Centre to pick up the following Canadian Cancer Society resource:

- Life after Cancer: A guide for cancer survivors

Tell Us What You Think! _____

*After you review the 'My Care Binder', please respond to the statements below.
Your answers and comments will help us improve the Binder for future patients.*

You are a (please check):

- Patient of the London Regional Cancer Program
- A family member or friend of a patient of the London Regional Cancer Program

Questions:

1. The information in the My Care Binder helped me prepare for my visits to the London Regional Cancer Program.

Yes Somewhat No

Comments _____

2. The information in the My Care Binder answered my questions.

Yes Somewhat No

Comments _____

3. The words and sentences were easy to read.

Yes Somewhat No

Comments _____

4. The information was understandable.

Yes Somewhat No

Comments _____

What else would be helpful to know before coming to the London Regional Cancer Program?

Comments _____

Please bring this page to the Patient & Family Resource Centre and place it into the drop box or you can give it to a member of your health care team.

Thank you for taking the time to complete this survey.

(Adapted from JCC Patient and Family Handbook)