Nurse Practitioner: Regular Full-Time
Cardiac Care Program
University Hospital

The Nurse Practitioner (NP) is a nurse prepared at the graduate and post-graduate level, who functions in a collaborative practice model. The NP possesses a Master's degree in Nursing and has qualified as an RN-Extended Class in accordance with the standards of the College of Nurses of Ontario. The NP demonstrates a comprehensive knowledge base in Cardiac Care and has demonstrated a high degree of clinical competence in caring for cardiac surgery patients with acute and specialized healthcare needs. The NP scope of practice incorporates the skills and knowledge from the disciplines of nursing and medicine. Working in collaboration with a group of Cardiac Surgeons, the NP manages, directs and provides comprehensive assessment and care for this select patient population in a collaborative interdisciplinary team environment. The NP uses advanced assessment skills and a sound knowledge of clinical therapeutics and provides indirect patient care services to support patient care, promote professional education, and advance knowledge through research and scholarly activities. All duties and responsibilities of the NP conform to professional practice standards and hospital guidelines and are in accordance with a written collaborative practice agreement with physician members of the medical staff at London Health Sciences Centre.
